

a simple career change; it's where she is meant to be.

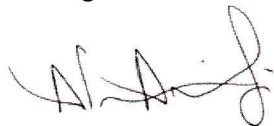

But answering her calling hasn't been easy.

Leaving behind a stable career as a physician to pursue her calling in public health came with uncertainty and sacrifice. The financial burden of tuition and living expenses has been heavy. And yet, Umang has never wavered. She believes this path—this mission—is worth every challenge.

Your monthly support has already made a difference in Umang's journey. You gave the gift of opportunity, and Umang was able to focus on becoming a leader in public health—one who sees the whole person, the whole system, and the whole community.

Your consistent generosity sustains students like Umang as they dedicate their lives to transforming health systems and serving overlooked communities. By considering an increase in your monthly commitment, you can expand opportunities for more students who are ready to take on the challenges of public health with compassion and vision. Thank you!

With gratitude,

Adam L. Arechiga, PsyD, DrPH, MA
Dean, Loma Linda University School of Public Health
